RF Navigator utilizes RF mobile computers and Majure Data RF Navigator software for system-directed paperless warehouse operations that operate in real-time with DMSi software. Mobile Solutions is an affordable way to begin the transformation of your operations with better warehousing practices through the use of wireless hand-held technology.

ROUTING & LOGISTICS

The Agility Routing Interface provides customers the flexibility to select the third party routing solution which best matches their requirements. Recognizing these functions often differ significantly between customers, DMSi has partnered with two third party solution providers: DQ Technologies and Appian Solutions. Either option provides customers the tools they need to better manage their fleets and deliveries with tools, such as: dispatch controls, GPS truck routing/tracking, delivery cost management/reporting and web access for real-time tracking.

ELECTRONIC DOCUMENT IMAGING

WorldView online Document Storage Services include designing, building and implementing a cost-effective system that maintains vital documents at a secure Internet site. Businesses electronically file documents such as invoices, credit memos, accounts payable checks, pick tickets, reports and more. Files are always available at your office PC, home PC, or anywhere you're connected to the Internet. You'll find it quick and easy to retrieve documents when you need them. You can store millions of pages electronically allowing you to finally get rid of those filing cabinets.

e-COMMERCE

PartnerView portal allows your customers access to critical information from your back-end application on their terms - 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It provides unlimited access to review products, offers and deliveries from your website. Customers can find and print invoices, view open orders, get shipping status, and more. Save time - real time data empowers your customers to find answers to urgent questions immediately, without playing phone tag with your sales staff. Reduces costs by allowing customer self-service and electronic document retrieval.

StockNET allows your customers to access and view your catalog on CD-ROM or over the Internet. When used in conjunction with EntryNET, StockNET provides for internet based click-and-order catalog functionality. The cost of building, maintaining, and distributing an electronic product catalog is a fraction of the cost of hard copy versions and most distributors find it practically impossible to keep customer hard copy catalogs current. With automatic synchronization between your DMSi inventory system and StockNET, catalog maintenance becomes very easy to manage. StockNET is reasonably easy to implement and aside from it's obvious ROI over hard copy, will project a very positive image of your company to your customers.

EntryNET is everything that PartnerView is, plus Order/Quote entry. Customers have 24x7 access to your website and can place their own orders with their prices and ordering history. There is a certain amount of time and effort required to improve stock and catalog information and to implement EntryNET. While DMSi can help with the majority of this, there must be a customer resource dedicated to the project. Immediately after roll-out, significant customer service and order entry efficiencies can be achieved.

EDI provides you the ability to send and receive documents — purchase orders, invoices, credit memos and more — electronically. EDI transmission saves time, money and ensures accurate communication. And you can be assured that your document was sent and read because DMSi's EDI system automatically informs you when documents were received.
